

How much does it cost per meter to lay underground fiber optic cable

Summary of Content

Laying one meter of fiber optic cable directly underground typically costs between $7 and $25 per meter, depending on cable type, trenching method, and local conditions.

Cost Breakdown

Material Costs: Direct-burial armored fiber optic cables range from approximately $3 to $12 per meter, depending on strand count and single-mode or multi-mode type . Conduits, if used, add $0.60-$4 per meter, with HDPE being slightly more expensive than PVC . Labor and Trenching: Excavation labor varies widely, from $7 to $50 per meter, influenced by soil type, rock presence, or high water tables . Trenching equipment rental can add $2-$10 per meter, while directional boring for road crossings or difficult terrain costs $10-$25 per meter . Additional Costs: Handholes, access vaults, and splice enclosures may add $200-$800 per unit, but these are spread over multiple meters of cable . Urban projects may incur extra fees for traffic control, permits, and safety compliance, adding $1-$10 per meter .

Typical Range

Considering all factors, a realistic per-meter cost for underground fiber installation is roughly $7-$25, with lower costs in open rural areas and higher costs in urban or challenging terrain . Using existing conduits or rights-of-way can reduce costs, while complex routes, deep trenches, or high fiber counts increase them.

Tips to Reduce Costs

- Consolidate multiple fiber runs into a single trench or conduit.
