

Telecom acquires fiber optic cable

Overview

AT&T (NYSE:T) has closed its previously announced transaction to acquire substantially all of Lumen's (NYSE: LUMN) Mass Markets fiber business for $5. This is reported in the AT&T press release. 5 billion in cash, subject to customary post-closing adjustments. The transaction expands. The deal, agreed a year ago, strengthens its transatlantic and intra-European subsea connectivity, adding key cables to its 160,000-kilometre fibre network spanning 37 countries, while reflecting a rare distressed-asset opportunity in today's telecoms market. In sum – what to know: Strategic. Three years after an Anchorage company trying to build a fiber optic cable from Asia to Europe via Alaska was bought by an out-of-state investment firm, Quintillion is back under Alaskan management. GCI is acquiring Quintillion's holding company, Q Gateway Intermediate Holdings, as well as its. Prysmian has agreed to acquire Channell Commercial Corporation (“Channell”), a leading connectivity solutions provider in the United States, for a total consideration of $950 million, subject to certain closing adjustments, and for a potential additional post-closing payment of up to $200 million. Indian telecom equipment maker HFCL has secured a significant international contract valued at approximately Rs 10,159 crore. Deliveries are scheduled to commence in 2026 and continue through.
